

Inequality in Bolivia

Elections and indigenous self-determination

Wednesday September 15 | 12pm Pacific Time

<https://youtu.be/chW5W3NHx-w>

In Jesús de Machaca, a rural, indigenous community in Bolivia, elections are held yearly for the highest political position, Jilakatas, in a process that was codified into law in the 2009 Constitution. How does this fit into the larger context of anti-colonialism and self-determination movements in the Americas?

Bruno Baltodano is professor of political science at Florida SouthWestern State College. He received his Ph.D. from Washington State University.

Watch all events live on the Foley Institute Youtube Channel
(url: youtube.com/c/FoleyInstitute/videos)