

KIMBERLY GREEN LATIN AMERICAN
AND CARIBBEAN CENTER

Geopolitical Competition and Cooperation in the Caribbean in the Age of COVID-19

Thursday, May 13, 2021
10:00-11:30 am EDT | Live Webinar

The Caribbean has enduring geopolitical value and COVID-19 has added to its complexity. This webinar examines the geopolitical landscape of the contemporary Caribbean, China's growing influence and other outside actors, COVID-19 and pandemic diplomacy, US interests, and strategic resource wealth, management, competition, and access.

Registration link: <https://go.fiu.edu/Caribbean>

This webinar is part of the LACC/CPC Caribbean Policy Series.

Free and open to the public but registration is required.

Email ldudley@fiu.edu for more information.

Panelists:

Dr. Ivelaw Lloyd Griffith

Senior Associate, Americas Program, Center for Strategic and International Studies and Fellow, Caribbean Policy Consortium

Dr. Elena Cyrus

Assistant Professor, Department of Population Health Sciences, University of Central Florida

Ambassador G. Philip Hughes

Faculty, The Institute of World Politics and Fellow, Caribbean Policy Consortium

Bruce Zagaris

Partner, Berliner Corcoran & Rowe LLP and Fellow, Caribbean Policy Consortium

Moderator:

Hon. Luis Guillermo Solís

Interim Director, Kimberly Green Latin American and Caribbean Center, Florida International University and former President of Costa Rica